WALLACE K. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1895.

The Evening Bulletin, following the lines of progressive journalism, comes out with enlarged pages and a new make-up. The change results in an attractive paper, with more reading matter and a general improvement throughout.

NOTWITHSTANDING the business men of Honolulu have been tried as by fire, they have kept cool and shown their confidence in the ability of the country to overcome any obstacles that may be placed in its way. The action of Bishop & Co. in importing at this time a large sum of money and the healthy activity of the real estate market combine to give the best possible demonstration of the feeling of the business community. The spirit of progression has come to stay.

W. R. CASTLE, our Minister at Washington, moved towards the diplomatic "dead line," if the newspaper interviews with him are correctly stated. He should have refused absolutely to discuss the past relations of our Government with that of Washington. No European diplomat would have felt it polite to have alluded to the past. Mr. Castle follows the American school of diplomats, who are accustomed to open discussion, without restriction, and he has many worthy examples before him. But, under the circumstances, it would be wiser to maintain a reticent attitude.

THE FREE KINDERGARTENS.

Among the various new developments of educational work in this city, not the least in importance is the system of free kindergartens, which has recently been inaugurated. It was last year carried on as a department of the Woman's Board of Missions, but the work has lately been reorganized, and is now taken in charge by the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association. This is a new organization, independent of church lines or national distinctions, and has the support of a large constituency of ladies interested in this benevolent work that appeals so strongly to every woman's kindly nature. The public meeting this morning is for the election of officers and committees. Plans of work for the coming year have been so far perfected that it needs only the hearty co-operation and generous giving, so characteristic of this community, to make the work a decided success from the very start.

AVOID BUSINESS DELAYS.

The community is practically unanimous in the decision that the time has come for raising the absolute quarantine that has, and will so long as it continues, placed a serious damper on inter-island traffic. So long as occasional cholera cases crop out it will be hardly advisable to allow free and unrestricted traffic, but it is a poor stroke of policy to continue the same restrictions that obtain during an epidemic. The request of the business men is a reasonable one and should be granted as soon as possible. In this connection it will be a wise move to come to some decision regarding Oriental goods and make preparations for dealing with them. The Chinese and Japanese merchants receive nearly all their supplies from Oriental ports. Steamship lines prefer to carry good to San Francisco rather than hold a through steamer here for the term of quarantine, but should a vessel come from an Oriental port and submit to the quarantine, it cannot be refused entry. Under the existing circumstances it is highly probable that we shall soon have to deal with such a vessel. Oriental goods ought not to be accepted unless fumigated previous to being landed. At the present time we have little or no means for dealing with these goods. It will save a deal of trouble and perturbation of merchants' spirits for the Government to be forearmed in this matter. It will be all of two months before the proposed fumigating plant is in operation and at present we are practically without means for fumigating merchandise, and should a vessel arrive within a short time there must necessarily be considerable delay in preparing for the disinfection. Merchants chafe under such delays. Make ready the fumigating station for merchandise, so that incoming cargoes or goods sent to the other islands can be put through the processes prescribed by the Board of Health with the quickest possible despatch. Business men are willing to adapt themselves to circumstances and it is proper that the circumstances should be adapted to the business men, by prompt action in forestalling the possibility of unnecessary delays.

ESTABLISH "FISH COOKING" PLANTS.

In considering the fish question, it has been stated that dealing out raw fish to the natives, even under the direction of the Board of Health, would not eliminate the danger consequent to eating raw fish. "We must have the fish cooked." This barrier can be easily removed by the Board of Health seeing to it that the fish are cooked. The Government is now under quite an expense in furnishing many natives with food. The same money might better be expended in establishing "cooking plants" carried on under the direction of the Board. Natives now idle and supported at public expense could be employed in cleaning and cooking the fish in the manner suited to the customs of the Hawaiians. Let the fishermen deliver their catch at the distributing stations, where it will be taken in hand by the Health agents, properly cleaned and cooked, and either turned over to the vendors or sold direct. Let a nominal price be established, so that the consumers will not have to stand the expense of the product being cooked. To raise the prices to cover the extra expense would only be another way of shutting out the classes which these unusual methods are aimed to protect. It cannot be said to be a money making scheme from a Government standpoint, except that it is cheaper than the present method of supplying food, and will give employment to those who are idle on account of Hawaiian fish being placed on the black list.

DR. CYRUS EDSON, formerly a member of the New York Health Commission, in an interesting article on the curious diseases of modern life tells of an actor who became bewitched by a flower. About midnight after a performance, the man usually phlegmatic and calm, would become unusually talkative, demonstrative and full of enthusiasm. Peculiar symptoms developed which baffled the physicians. Some said that the covering of the brain was inflamed, others that the man was under the influence of a powerful poison. The mystery was solved when it was discovered that two weeks previous the actor attended the unfolding of a night-blooming cereus at Washington, D. C. He cut one of the blossoms from the stem and in so doing cut his thumb in such a way as to become inoculated with the juice of the plant, which is very powerful and often distilled and used as a homeopathic medicine. He also preserved the flower in alcohol keeping it near his bed, thus inhaling the slight vapor and emphasizing the influence of the drug. Dr. Edson states that one or two cases are on record of persons having purposely placed themselves under the stimulus of the drug for the influence on the brain, and, while under its influence, have dictated weird poetry and extravagant romance. It now becomes a live question whether or no some of the writers of the "opposition press" have not visited the Punahou hedge before turning their pens to a discussion of the Board of Health.
